THERMAL PAPER CASH ROLLS

Thermal paper (sometimes referred to as an audit roll) is a special fine paper that is coated with a material formulated to change color when exposed to heat. It is used in thermal printers, particularly in inexpensive or lightweight devices such as adding machines, cash registers, and credit card terminals.

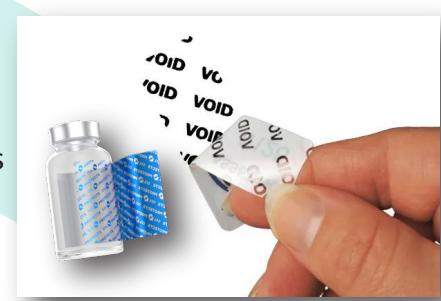

Tamper Evident Labels

A thermal evident label is a security label that uses heat-sensitive materials to show a clear "tamper-evident" indication if it's removed or tampered with. These labels can be direct thermal, which use heat to create an image on the label itself, or thermal transfer, which use a heated ribbon to transfer ink to the label's surface.

Void Labels

A type of security label; these labels are designed to indicate that a label has been tampered with by displaying a void message on the substrate (total-transfer), on the back of the label (non-transfer), or both (partial transfer) when the label is removed

Location Labels

A location label is a tag or identifier used to describe, organize, or track a physical or digital location. It can be a unique address for a bin in a warehouse, a private name for a place on a map, or a tag linking content to a specific spot. The meaning depends on the context, ranging from simple organization to detailed tracking for logistics, social media, or map-based applications.

Sign Board

The meaning of a signboard or label depends on its type, context, and the universal system of colors and shapes used to convey information. They are critical tools for providing safety information, regulating behavior, giving directions, and branding

SHRINK SLEEVE LABEL

Shrink sleeve labels are full-color, 360-degree printed labels that utilize heat in the application process to conform the label to the shape of the container.

ASSET TAG & ASSET LABELS

Asset tags and asset labels are interchangeable terms for durable identification markers affixed to physical assets to help track and manage them throughout their lifecycle. These labels contain unique serial numbers, barcodes, or QR codes that link the physical asset to a database for inventory, maintenance, and security purposes.

TAPE DISPENSER

A tape dispenser is a device that holds a roll of tape and has a mechanism, like a serrated blade or teeth, to cut or tear it easily. These dispensers make applying tape faster, cleaner, and more precise than using scissors or tearing it by hand, and they come in various forms, from small, desktop office models to large, heavy-duty industrial units.

PRICING GUNS & STICKERS

A pricing gun is a hand-held device used in stores for fixing a price label to a product. A handy item to purchase is a pricing gun, which is capable of mechanically printing your price codes on the price stickers.

PP STRAP & BUCKLES

PP straps and buckles are a common packaging and bundling system used to secure items for shipping, storage, and transport. PP stands for polypropylene, a durable, lightweight, and cost-effective plastic material.
